

Compensation Research Centre

The Compensation Research Centre (CRC) enhances the strategic and competitive position of member organizations through a combination of meetings, research, and customized information services. It provides access to knowledge and to networking opportunities that are a must for Canada's compensation executives.

“ There are three things [about CRC] that strike me: the high calibre of companies and individuals who choose to participate; the open sharing and discussion of topical issues and practical solutions to real problems with acknowledged experts; and the professional network that can be developed to offer year-round support outside of formal meetings.”

Key features

The members

The Conference Board of Canada has a unique ability to bring together senior leaders from a wide variety of industries and sectors across Canada to discuss issues, share and compare best practices, and learn from one another. As a member, you are invited to network with other senior executives, thought leaders, and practitioners in the field of total rewards.

The meeting experience

Our meeting program provides broad-based networking opportunities and features presentations by members and subject matter experts. Members create a collegial and open environment where they can offer their thoughts and ideas in a confidential and off-the-record setting. During members-only roundtables, members learn from the experiences of colleagues and bring back viable and tested solutions to their organizations.

Customized services

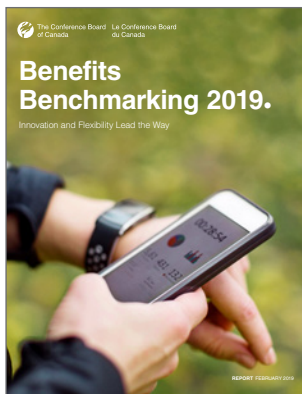

Each year the CRC responds to more than 200 information requests from members on a wide range of topics. Areas of inquiry include compensation, benefits, the HR function, recruitment and retention, performance management, employee recognition, turnover, and flexible work arrangements, to name a few.

The Compensation Research Centre publishes a number of reports. These reports and others are available to members as part of membership and include:
